Meet the Enzu Leadership Team

Enzu co-founders Steve Empie and Nick Rose are "born in the cloud" leaders with a passion for helping companies make intelligent technology choices that accelerate their business growth and transformation. Understanding the unique challenges that companies face when adopting the cloud, Steve and Nick built Enzu from the ground up to deliver flexible, scalable and affordable enterprise-class cloud solutions backed by unmatched customer support.

Steve and Nick share executive management responsibilities for Enzu's overall strategic direction and growth. Together with Enzu's team, they are building a company that provides lifelong learning and earning opportunities for their employees and an unbeatable combination of customized and cost-effective cloud solutions.

STEVE EMPIE, CEO

A seasoned tech executive and entrepreneur, Steve has a proven track record of establishing financial and operational strategies that position established and emerging companies for long-term growth. He ensures that every Enzu team member has the tools and resources they need to create the best possible experience for our customers and partners. Steve also spearheads the company's product development and global market expansion, living up to the promise of delivering "your cloud, your way." Prior to launching Enzu, Steve founded and operated SurfSpeedy, a web hosting provider with over 40,000 customers, which he sold to Tech Assets in 2007.

NICK ROSE, CTO

Nick is the mastermind behind Enzu's technical vision and development. Leveraging his 12-plus years of virtualization and cloud experience, Nick balances leading edge of cloud technology with security and automation to ensure customers achieve the maximum value from their cloud investments. In addition to his role at Enzu, Nick also sits on the Technical Advisory Board of UCX – Universal Compute Xchange, a secondary marketplace for cloud computing.
